CHAPTER 1

The History of Abnormal Psychology..... 2

The Three Criteria for Determining Psychological Disorders 4

Distress 5
 Impairment in Daily Life 5
 Risk of Harm 7
 Context and Culture 7

Views of Psychological Disorders Before Science 11

Ancient Views of Psychopathology 11
 Supernatural Forces 11
 Chinese Qi 11
 Ancient Greeks and Romans 12
 Forces of Evil in the Middle Ages and the Renaissance 13
 The Middle Ages 13
 The Renaissance 13
 Rationality and Reason in the 18th and 19th Centuries 13
 Asylums 14
 Novel Humane Treatments 14
 Moral Treatment 15
 Neurasthenia 16

The Transition to Scientific Accounts of Psychological Disorders 16

Freud and the Importance of Unconscious Forces 17
 Psychoanalytic Theory 17
 Psychosexual Stages 18
 Mental Illness, According to Freud 19
 Defense Mechanisms 19
 Psychoanalytic Theory Beyond Freud 19
 Evaluating Freud’s Contributions 20

The Humanist Response 21

Lasting Contributions of Psychodynamic and Humanist Approaches 21

Scientific Accounts of Psychological Disorders 22

Behaviorism 22
 The Cognitive Contribution 23
 Social Forces 24
 Biological Explanations 25
 The Modern Synthesis of Explanations of Psychopathology 26
 The Diathesis–Stress Model 26
 The Biopsychosocial and Neuropsychosocial Approaches 27

CHAPTER 2

Understanding Psychological Disorders: The Neuropsychosocial Approach..... 32

Neurological Factors in Psychological Disorders 34

Brain Structure and Brain Function 34
 A Quick Tour of the Nervous System 35
 Neurons 38
 Chemical Signals 39
 Hormones and the Endocrine System 42

The Genetics of Psychopathology 42
 Behavioral Genetics 43

Feedback Loops in Action: The Genes and the Environment 46

 The Environment Affects the Genes 46
 The Genes Affect the Environment 46

Psychological Factors in Psychological Disorders 48

Behavior and Learning 48
 Classical Conditioning 48
 Operant Conditioning 50

Feedback Loops in Action: Classical Conditioning and Operant Conditioning Revisited 52

 Observational Learning 52

Mental Processes and Mental Contents	53	The Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders	78
Mental Processes	53	The Evolution of DSM	79

CHAPTER 5

Researching Abnormality	152
Using the Scientific Method to Understand Abnormality	153
The Scientific Method	154
Collect Initial Observations	154
Identify a Question	154
Develop a Hypothesis	155
Collect Data to Test the Hypothesis	155
Develop a Theory	155
Test the Theory	155
Types of Scientific Research	156
Conducting Research with Experiments	156

Quasi-Experimental Design	159
Correlational Research	160
Case Studies	163
Meta-Analysis	166
Ethical Guidelines for Research	167
Research Challenges in Understanding Abnormality	169
Challenges in Researching Neurological Factors	169
Challenges in Researching Psychological Factors	170
Biases in Mental Processes That Affect Assessment	170
Research Challenges with Clinical Interviews	170
Research Challenges with Questionnaires	171
Challenges in Researching Social Factors	172
Investigator-Influenced Biases	173
Effects of Community Standards on Individual Behavior	174
Cultural Differences in Evaluating Symptoms	174
Researching Treatment	175
Researching Treatments That Target Neurological Factors	175
Drug Effect or Placebo Effect?	175
Dropouts	176
Researching Treatments That Target Psychological Factors	177
Common Factors	177
Specific Factors	178
Controlling Possible Confounding Variables with Analogue Studies	178
Is Therapy Better Than No Treatment?	179
Is One Type of Therapy Generally More Effective Than Another?	180
Is One Type of Therapy Better for Treating a Specific Disorder?	181
Ethical Research on Experimental Treatments	184
The Therapy Dose-Response Relationship	185
Researching Treatments That Target Social Factors	186
Matching Patient and Therapist by Gender and Ethnicity	186
Culturally Sanctioned Placebo Effects	186
 Feedback Loops in Action: The Placebo Effect	187
